

Other People's Ideas

Published September 3rd, 2017

Calvin Staples, MSc

I recently fit my first pair of wearable hearing devices. It was a failure when compared to his current hearing aids. The patient had reviewed this product online, determined it was an excellent opportunity for him to try. He purchased the devices and brought them to me to help me guide him through the fitting and to see how they compared to his current hearing aid settings. He returned the devices after three unsuccessful weeks of use. I am sure there are wonderful non-traditional hearing aids available, but unfortunately this first experience was not what was expected. The following blogs and updates are related to PSAPs and OTCs as they will inevitably be part of our marketplace - Happy Reading!