I have spent the past 5 years stumbling over how to explain a certain graph to my students. It's funny because I feel I understand the graph quite well, but can never find the exact words to convey its importance when fitting hearing aids. However, to my surprise Wayne Staab discussed this graph among others in his recent blog discussing amplification for the mid-frequencies. In seeing this blog, I decided all the blogs would focus on hearing loss and hearing aids this month. Enjoy the readings and happy hearing aid fittings!
