The fall may be my favourite and most busy time of the year. My kiddos are back in school and so am I. The fall seems to bring so many exciting times for our children; start of school, start of winter sports (hockey), Halloween, pumpkin patches, and corn mazes and the excitement of Christmas off in the distance. The only unfortunate parts of the fall are darkening cooler days as I am one for the heat and the sun! As an audiologist that assesses paediatrics the fall is quite busy seeing children who teachers or parents are concerned about their hearing. In days that are often dedicated to hearing aids, children break up the routine and often provide some unexpected excitement in my day. Here are some blogs for the kiddos!
