By the time you read this submission I am hopeful winter will long be over. The start of spring in my household means tear down the outdoor rink, tune in to see if the Jays are for real, take in a conference or two and see how far the Habs go in the Stanley Cup playoffs. This month's blog submissions relate to the size of our little industry. The audiology industry is fascinating and much larger than I give it credit; see below. I think each blog submission is incredibly interesting and impressive. I think these entries have something for everyone. Happy Reading!
