

Other People's Ideas

Published July 9th, 2015

Calvin Staples, MSc

The monthly blog submission is always something I enjoy. The folks at hearinghealthmatters.org do a wonderful job providing clinicians with some insight regarding the advances seen in audiology. The pharmacological updates in audiology seem to occur weekly and to me are easily the most fascinating. If or when any of these updates come to clinical practice I have no idea, but I think as clinicians it is imperative we are aware of some of these developments so that we can craft out our role as we move forward and best serve our patients. Happy reading!