“Other people's ideas” is the name of my new blog summary for Canadian Audiologist. I am honoured that this journal has asked me to review, and select some weekly blogs at www.hearinghealthmatters.org. I find them very useful clinically and a great stepping stone to greater academic work. Audiologists tend to spend a majority of their days testing hearing and fitting hearing aids so I thought this first blog would focus on what a majority of audiologists do regularly. Enjoy the blogs!
